

Open Air Art Festival Weekend

We're opening the campus for a weekend of community, campfire chats, and creative exchange in celebration of Shared AIR, our inaugural summer artist-in-residence program.

Join us August 22–24 as resident artists Ali Syverson and Laura Colwell invite you into their studios to share their works-in-progress, creative practices, and what they've been exploring during their time on campus.

The weekend will also feature a special art showcase highlighting Ali's large-scale paintings and Cathlin's documentary photography—a vibrant visual record of life, work, and play at Hilltown.

Come for the community mural, stay for the film screening, live music, artist talks, and late-night hangs at the pub.

Tuition:

- $100 per overnight guest includes overnight Friday and Saturday with light meals throughout the day on Saturday and Sunday breakfast
- $50 per person commuter rate, includes full access to activities and lunch & dinner

Little Nights Community Art Talk

Join us at the Guggenheim Pavillion for a presentation and conversation with Josh Krigman and Hannah Mode, the founders and artists behind Little Nights and the leaders of the creative retreat we'll be hosting on campus over Labor Day Weekend.

In this interactive presentation, you'll learn about their experience (creative writing for Josh, visual arts for Hannah), how and why they built Little Nights, and their approach to art as a social practice. As with all Little Nights programming, folks with all levels of art experience—including none!—are invited to join. The presentation will be followed by a brief Q+A.
